In the event of a capital increase, issue of convertible bonds or subscription rights, the shares to be subscribed for in cash, the convertible bonds or the subscription rights must be offered in preference to the shareholders in proportion to the proportion of the capital represented by their shares.

The preferential subscription right may be exercised during a period of at least fifteen days from the opening of the subscription.

The opening of the subscription with preferential subscription rights as well as the period for exercising them shall be determined by the issuing body and shall be brought to the attention of the holders of securities by electronic mail, or, for persons who do not have an electronic address, by ordinary mail, to be sent on the same day as the electronic communications.

If the entire capital increase or issue has not been subscribed by virtue of the foregoing, the Board of Directors shall have the power to enter into agreements with any third parties, on such terms as it may determine, in order to ensure the subscription of the entire capital increase or issue.

In the case of shares subject to beneficial ownership, the preferential subscription right shall belong to the bare owner, unless the bare owner and the beneficial owner agree otherwise. The new shares, convertible bonds or subscription rights which the beneficial owner obtains with their own funds shall belong to them in full ownership.

They shall be obliged to repay the value of the beneficial ownership on the preferential subscription right to the beneficial owner.

If the bare owner does not exercise the preferential subscription right, the beneficial owner may exercise it. The new shares which the beneficial owner obtains with their own funds shall belong to them in full ownership.

If a share which is not fully paid up is held jointly by several owners, each of them shall be jointly and severally liable for the payment of the total amount of the instalments called and due.

Where the capital is not fully paid up, the Board of Directors shall have sole discretion to decide on the calls to be made by the shareholders on an equal basis.

Payments on shares not yet fully paid up must be made at the places and on the dates determined by the Board of Directors.

Amounts called up but not paid within eight days of their due date shall bear interest, calculated per day of delay from the due date at the rate applicable to cash advances from the Company's principal banker. The Board of Directors may also, after a formal notice served by registered letter which has remained unheeded for one month, declare the shareholder's forfeiture and sell the shares on which the payments called for have not been made, the other shareholders having the same preferential right in this respect as in the case of a capital increase. The net proceeds of the sale shall be applied in the first instance to the benefit of the Company against the principal and interest owed to it by the defaulting shareholder, without prejudice to the right of the Company to claim from them the balance due as well as any damages and interest.

The surplus, if any, shall be remitted to the defaulting shareholder if they are not otherwise indebted to the Company.

In this case, the mandator shall be deemed to be present. However, no director may represent more than one of their colleagues.

If a legal entity is appointed as director, it shall appoint a natural person to be its permanent representative, through the intervention of whom it shall perform the duties of director.

In this respect, third parties may not require proof of powers, the simple indication of the capacity of permanent representative of the legal entity being sufficient.

5. Powers to execute the decisions taken

Proposed decision: The general meeting confers on each member of the Board of Directors, with the right of substitution, all powers of execution of the decisions taken by the Extraordinary General Meeting. The general meeting gives the mission to the undersigned Notary, acting alone, to draw up and sign the coordination of the Articles of Association, and to ensure its filing in the Company's file.
